Crisis and Character

Crisis can strike any one, anytime, anywhere. You can never anticipate it and that's the reason why your reaction to it is an instinctive one. Some people think that crisis can serve to build character and maybe it's true, but that happens much, much later, after the crisis has passed, and only if one is inclined to learn by introspection and insight. At the moment when catastrophe strikes, you can only exhibit the character ingrained in you .

My Real Hero: Arunachalam

Muruganathan

A school dropout from a poverty-stricken family in Tamil Nadu's is an unlikely social crusader tackling one of India's most menacing health crisis — menstrual hygiene. And today, here he is, helping millions of Indian rural women afford low-cost sanitary napkins. He believes that our country cannot be called 'developed' if we cannot make mothers of this nation healthy.

Role of youth in India-Nandini

The gentle push, the angry voice, the change makers, the burden bearers, all these adjectives fit the context perfectly when we talk about the youth. The young people have taken the modern India by storm. They want to be everything for the nation, the one that criticizes it the most and then gets up to shape it better. They figure out the good and the bad and choose their role accordingly.

Inspiration for today's youth

When power is misused, it translates into violence; but when it is used for achieving one's righteous goals, it amounts to justice.' This revolutionary ideology was stated by the great revolutionary Bhagat Singh. 'Any sacrifice will be inadequate to accomplish the greatest aim of freeing the motherland', was the inspiring outlook of Bhagat Singh, and his associates in the freedom fight.
